Marrying an appreciation of fine wines and a love for animals has resulted in a unique online experience—Critter Wines (www.critterwines.com) offers a collection of wines labeled with pictures of favorite animals, reptiles, fish, and birds through a new online site. Based in the heart of the California wine country—Napa Valley—Sandy and Keith Stansberry have joined with friends Leighann and Raul Taibo to create this online site catering to wine and animal fans. Combining their personal interests in animals and knowledge of wine, Critterwines.com was born.

Critter Wines offers more than 100 critter label categories including aardvark, butterfly, newt, and woodchuck. By selecting a category, the shopper can view all of the labels picturing the particular creature available through the site. We are thrilled to share our love for critters and wine through our new site. With over 800 (and growing) creatively labeled fine wines to choose from, we know shoppers will find the perfect wine to suit both their interests and palates.

“Aardvark is a joint venture between John Williams, Gary Gates and Jonah Beer created out of love for this challenging and ultimately rewarding varietal. But why the name Aardvark, some have asked. Our more cynical friends have suggested we were just plain lazy and took the first name we could find in the dictionary. Others have postulated that we were going to pursue the selling of our wine in the Yellow Pages. Well, we do wish we had thought of that last one, but truth be told we chose the name to serve as a constant reminder that our pursuit should always remind to be the first name in Pinot. And not just by alphabetical entitlement but also by the recognition of our commitment to the most traditional Burgundian winemaking methods and allowing for pure, natural varietal flavors...”
